How CLAS Advising Works

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS) utilizes a shared-advising system, which means all undergraduate students in a CLAS major have a minimum of two academic advisors with whom they work throughout their time at CU Denver. CLAS Academic Advisors work with students regarding CU Denver Core Curriculum and graduation requirements, and CLAS graduation requirements, as well as university and college policies and procedures. Faculty mentors/advisors work with students on their major and/or requirements within their respective academic departments. Both advisors monitor students' degree progress and approve graduation eligibility.

The Center for Undergraduate Exploration & Advising \(CUE&A\) advises students who are undecided about their college major (i.e., undeclared) or who are pre-architecture. CUE&A is located in Student Commons Building 1113 and can be reached at 303-315-1940.
