Suggested and Required Courses for Humanities (HUMN) and Social Science (SSCI) Graduate Students

FALL 2020

The following listings comprise both MH and MSS required courses in addition to suggested courses. It is not comprehensive. If you wish to take a course for credit towards the MH or MSS degree which is not listed here, please consult with your program advisor.

PLEASE NOTE

- Students may register for suggested courses without pre-approval of a program advisor provided the courses are compatible with the student’s plan of study. Remember that students are required to meet with the program advisor regularly to review their plan of study.
- Students may consider any 4000/5000 level courses offered at UCD not listed here only with advisor approval.
- MH/MSS students may take no more than three (3) credit hours of online coursework (typically one course) toward the degree. NOTE: During the COVID-19 health crisis this rule does not apply for fall 2020.
- If a course is only listed at the 4000 level, it is possible to register for it as an Independent Study (HUMN/SSCI 5840) with the professor’s signature. In this situation, student and professor of the course must agree upon additional work necessary for graduate credit. Registration must be completed with a Special Processing Form obtained from the program offices or online on the CU Denver Registrar’s Web site. The course will appear on your transcript with the course title shown. All independent studies require approval of the Program Director.
- Check course search on UCDAccess to verify information on all cross listed and suggested classes.
- Some classes require pre-requisites. It is up to the student to make sure these are met.

The practice of historic preservation has evolved in a specific policy context. This introductory course introduces basic American institutions and laws associated with preservation as well as standards, definitions, and practices associated with these. Cross-listed with URPL 6499. Max hours: 3 Credits.

This class explores the history of the built environment from the perspective of evolutionary change; peoples attempting to meet utilitarian needs, respond to environmental forces, societal expectations, and aesthetic aspirations through design. The course looks closely at vernacular structures in a global context. Prereq: HIPR 6010 or permission of instructor. Cross-listed with ARCH 6350. Max hours: 3 Credits

This course covers the concept of "historic significance" and develops skills in understanding and professionally utilizing this concept. Procedures and skills are introduced. Prereq: HIPR 6010 or permission of instructor. Cross-listed with ARCH 6233. Max hours: 3 Credits.

This course begins with the premise that human habitats, and especially cities, are dynamic and ever changing; and that the preservationist cannot (and should not try) to freeze cities in a static representation of the past. The course deals with both the philosophical and political contexts, but emphasizes the role of strategic design intervention in the shaping of evolving cities. This includes traditional preservation activities, but also recognizes the importance of progressive change. Readings are diverse, but at least two case study cities are used to ground the concepts. Class activities include: a) research, b) field study, c) design, and d) presentation. Prereq: HIPR 6010 is recommended. Cross-listed with ARCH 6355. Max hours: 3 Credits.

PHILOSOPHY

PHIL 5101  Pragmatism: Classical American Philosophy  Call No. 35623
001-LEC Tu 5:00PM - 7:50PM  REMOTE  David Hildebrand
Perhaps the three most important questions for our nation of immigrants have been: Who are we? What do we believe? Should we accept the views of earlier generations? In addressing these questions, American philosophers have both accepted and rejected different pieces of their intellectual heritage (especially Descartes, Hume, Kant, Hegel, among others). In their most critical moments, American philosophers argue that philosophy must reassert itself as an active, constructive, and ethical force in human life. Doing this means shaking and breaking many traditional philosophical distinctions including those between: mind and body, fact and value, appearance and reality, self and society, probability and certainty, and language and world. We'll examine important philosophical themes developed and sustained by both classical and neopragmatists, spanning the 19th, 20th, and 21st centuries. Philosophers likely to include Charles Peirce, William James, John Dewey, Jane Addams, Alain Locke, Richard Rorty, and Hilary Putnam. Restricted to Graduate and Graduate Non-Degree Majors or undergraduate students in the Bachelors to Masters program (PHIL-BA-BMA). Cross-listed with PHIL 4101, SSCI 5101, HUMN 5101. Max hours: 3 Credits.

PHIL 5300  Philosophy of the Mind  Call No. 35620
001-LEC Mo 5:00PM - 7:50PM  REMOTE  Candice Shelby
With Descartes' famous "cogito ergo sum", the question of mind per se became a hot topic of philosophical discussion. More recently, over the past 150 years, the increasing influence of Darwin’s dangerous idea (to borrow Daniel Dennett’s phrase), has resulted in rising scientific as well as philosophical interest in the question of the mind's connection to the brain. Is the mind caused by the brain? Is the mind just the sum of the brain’s activities, or some subset thereof? If so, what is that nature of those activities? Are brains computer-like, or is the analogy misguided? What about consciousness? How does one explain something like that in physical terms? Consciousness seems to be categorically different from the physical, as does intentionality (the aboutness or directedness, of consciousness—how does that happen?). What about the minds of animals other than humans? Can we say anything about those? And what about rationality, the cornerstone of Philosophy? Are humans really rational in the way that we think we are? If so, what is the role of emotion in our mental lives? This course will address all these questions and numerous others, from a variety of perspectives. Thus, you can expect exposure to metaphysics, epistemology, neuroscience, computer science, and more! This is a 3-credit course that does not fulfill any Core Course requirements. Restriction: Restricted to Graduate and Graduate Non-Degree Majors or undergraduate students in the Bachelors to Masters program (PHIL-BA-BMA). Cross-listed with PHIL 4300. Max hours: 3 Credits.

PHIL 5308 Contemporary Feminist Thought

Call No. 34474

001-LEC TuTh 3:30PM - 4:45PM REMOTE Sarah Tyson, Gillian Silverman

This course examines changes and continuities in feminist thought in contemporary America—from the late 20th century to the 21st. Using philosophical documents and literature as our material, and philosophical and literary analysis as our method, we will explore the ways that women’s characteristics, experiences, and capabilities have been understood and challenged. The course pays particular attention to the diverse ways that “feminism” has been and continues to be conceptualized over time. It also addresses issues of intersectionality by examining how categories like race, class, and ethnicity, intersect with gender, sexuality, and sexual identity. Prereq: Graduate standing. Cross-listed with ENGL 4308, PHIL 4308, PHIL 5308, WGST 4308, WGST 5308. Term offered: spring. Max hours: 3 Credits.

PHIL 5441 Philosophical Reasoning Skills

Call No. 35990

001-LEC MoWe 2:00PM - 3:15PM REMOTE Candice Shelby

This course concentrates on the principles of correct reasoning, both formal and informal, in particular as employed in philosophical writing. In this class students will develop such skills a distinguishing argumentative from non-argumentative passages in ordinary language, analyzing the form of an argument, and recognizing the moves known to the tradition as ‘fallacies’, or ‘mistakes’ in reasoning, both formal and informal. Further, students will become familiar with deductive logic of syllogistic, sentential, and propositional types, and learn to employ several techniques for determining the validity or invalidity of arguments in both ordinary language and in symbolic form. Finally, students will learn to employ specialized philosophical tools, such as thought experiments, concept analysis, and linguistic analysis, for use in developing and defending philosophical arguments.
God, Gods, and Goddesses have been imagined in many different modes, forms, aspects, and guises throughout human history. This course investigates Paleolithic models of God, the Great Goddess of the Neolithic era, the Gods of mythological traditions, Biblical God, the abstract God of the philosophers, the God of the pantheists, the deists, and the God of the mystics. Restriction: Restricted to Graduate and Graduate Non-Degree Majors or undergraduate students in the Bachelors to Masters program (PHIL-BA-BMA). Cross-listed with PHIL 4650, RLST 4400 and 5400. Max Hours: 3 Credits.

In this course we will examine the thought of Friedrich Nietzsche through some of his most important and influential works. Some of the texts we will read include: The Birth of Tragedy, The Untimely Meditations, Beyond Good and Evil, and The Genealogy of Morals. One explicit aim of the class will be to explore whether and how Nietzsche's thought changed during the course of his intellectual development. Another goal will be to try to understand not just Nietzsche's various criticisms of the philosophical tradition but his positive contributions to it as well: that is, the ideals and values he sought to promote. Restriction: Restricted to Graduate and Graduate Non-Degree Majors or undergraduate students in the Bachelors to Masters program (PHIL-BA-BMA). Term offered: spring. Max hours: 3 Credits.

Immanuel Kant's revolutionary thought represents one of the most important developments in the history of Western philosophy. As a result, all subsequent philosophical thought has had to take Kant's transcendental idealism, and its radical reconceptualization of the subject/object distinction, into account. This course will consist of a detailed examination of Kant's ontology, epistemology and ethics. Restriction: Restricted to Graduate and Graduate Non-Degree Majors or undergraduate students in the Bachelors to Masters program (PHIL-BA-BMA). Cross-listed with PHIL 3760. Max hours: 3 Credits.

Introduces graduate study in political science. Provides an overview of theories and methods in the four fields of American politics, political theory, comparative politics and international relations. Guest lectures by department faculty.

WGST 5308   Contemporary Feminist Thought   Call No. 34476
001-LEC   TuTh 3:30PM - 4:45PM   REMOTE   Sarah Tyson, Gillian Silverman
This course examines changes and continuities in feminist thought in contemporary America—from the late 20th century to the 21st. Using philosophical documents and literature as our material, and philosophical and literary analysis as our method, we will explore the ways that women’s characteristics, experiences, and capabilities have been understood and challenged. The course pays particular attention to the diverse ways that “feminism” has been and continues to be conceptualized over time. It also addresses issues of intersectionality by examining how categories like race, class, and ethnicity, intersect with gender, sexuality, and sexual identity. Prereq: Graduate standing. Cross-listed with ENGL 4308, PHIL 4308, PHIL 5308, WGST 4308, WGST 5308. Term offered: spring. Max hours: 3 Credits.
