CLAS Research Launch and Completion Small Grants

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS) provides support for the initiation of new research and creative work or the completion of on-going research and creative activities that enhance the productivity and scholarly reputation of our faculty and college. The CLAS Research and Creative Activities small grants for tenure track, tenured, research and clinical teaching track faculty to initiate or complete scholarly research or creative work. These small grants can help cover expenses related to activities including accessing, gathering or generating data, conducting archival or field work, expenses related to human or animal subjects, equipment or lab supplies among many resources or activities specific to your project or research in your discipline. The intent of this program is to facilitate the initiation or completion of scholarly work leading to application for external funding and/or publication/dissemination. Examples of allowable expenses include fees for access to data, travel to research sites for archival or field work, research assistance by graduate or undergraduate students, incentives for research participants, acquisition of necessary materials, software or supplies among many others.

Instructions: Up to $1,000 may be requested in any 12-month period per faculty member to support research activities. Applicants must complete this award application form. Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the outcome of the planned work, the importance of the resources to complete the work, and the degree to which the budget request is justified. Please contact Faculty-Student-grants.CLAS@ucdenver.edu if you have any questions. Applications are accepted on a rolling basis.
